Did you know that you can run the MS-Access application and the migrated Web App at the same time?

For some of our customers who have limited resources or do not need the whole MS-Access application converted to a Web App, we can setup the existing MS-access application in Hybrid mode.
This means that the MS-Access application will get its data from the MS-SQL Server, and you can use the MS-Access application as normal and at the same time connect to the Web App application from a Web Browser and share the same data.

The advantage by the Hybrid solutions is that you only need to convert those MS-Access form you need on the web, the rest of the MS-Application stays as it is.

The key benefit from the Hybrid mode is that your MS-Access Application runs must faster and you over time can do the migration to a Web App. This is very helpful by complex applications.
